Child Behavior

Children with emotional and behavioral problems tend to spend longer periods of time in care, experience more placement disruptions, and are less likely to be reunited with their family of origin. The NOM has not yet begun collecting data in this area, but a follow-up study is being conducted for monitoring outcomes related to child emotional and behavioral problems: (1) document the specific problems identified in children using CI52008 code; (2) document the resolution of children with emotional and behavioral problems who are referred to specialized services; (3) document the service completion rate; and (4) evaluate the effectiveness of a documented specialized service. All Baltimore are lacking the resolution of the changed data (the Vo. in General). The Ad. a. one medical of behavioral problems.
